PART I, Line 8:

SanSFIS, Inc. has had gross receipts of less than $25,000 each year, and is not a private foundation. Because we are not required to file a Form 990, we have not done so.

PART II, Line 1:

SanSFIS, Inc. promotes public discussion of speculative fiction (which includes science fiction, fantasy, horror, and related artistic genres) principally through the operation of an annual literary conference, secondarily through an upcoming community lecture/discussion series, and finally through a future youth writing contest. Each activity is described below.

Our annual conference "Conjecture" gathers members of the public together for a weekend of lectures and discussions. We intend this meeting to take place in the fall of each year; our first took place Oct 18-20, 2002, last year's Oct 3-5, 2003, and this year's meeting is scheduled for Oct. 1-3, 2004.

At each of our past conferences, approximately 350 attendees -- both as speakers and as audience members -- participated in 100+ program items. Sessions covered a wide variety of topics including these examples:

Theories of History - Alternative Timelines: Various theories have been advanced in attempts to explain history; the "Great Man" hypothesis and the "Tides of History" are just two. How could the various theories of history influence potential alternate histories?

Cold Storage and Civilization: We all have time travel, at the rate of one minute per minute, forward only. But stasis technologies such as cryogenics can fast-forward one's perception of time. Discuss what such technologies could do to culture. Examine Vernor Vinge's bobbles, Orson Scott Card's somec, and other examples from SF literature.

Using SF as an Educational Tool: SF traditionally receives a very cool reception in the classroom. How can SF be effectively used in schools to increase literacy and learning?

Outsider Protagonists: Race, Gender, Species: It can be difficult for a mainstream reader to identify with characters that are different in terms of race, gender, or biology. The panelists will discuss why this is a difficult problem, and provide examples of successful portrayals of "other".

These hour-long lecture/panel sessions form the backbone of each conference program, and directly further our goal of promoting public discussion about speculative fiction. Other related program items included an art exhibit, and genre-related folk music performances.

Starting in late 2004, we plan to expand our activities to include a regular discussion or lecture session on topics such as the panels described above. These events will be free and open to the general public, and will be advertised at local libraries and through the local media.

Finally, in the future we plan to expand our focus to include schoolchildren in the San Diego area through sponsorship of a youth speculative-fiction writing contest. This activity will be led by volunteers drawn from our pool of members, who will coordinate with local area teachers. Our contest will be modeled after similar successful programs in the Baltimore and Salt Lake City regions.

At present, the operation of our annual conference consumes 100% of our time and resources. Once our future programs are underway, we expect the conference to consume 85% of our time and resources, and the other two programs each to consume 7.5%.

PART II, Line 2:

Our principal source of financial support will be the gross registration receipts from our annual conference. Incidental sources, amounting to less than 10% of our income, will include advertising in our conference's program guide, commissions on art exhibition consignment sales, and miscellaneous donations.

PART II, Line 3:

At present, our fundraising program consists of encouraging participation in our annual conference. In the future, we plan to solicit donations to support a youth speculative-fiction writing contest.

PART II, Line 11:

Everyone is invited to participate in our events and functions, whether or not they are a formal corporate member. A corporate member may participate in the governance of the corporation as described in our Bylaws, but otherwise enjoys no special privileges.

Corporate membership is open to persons who have volunteered for or helped organize at least two Corporate programs over the past three years. In general, volunteer opportunities exist for any member of the public who is interested in furthering the educational mission of the corporation.

Our corporate membership recruitment is primarily achieved through the operation of our annual conference. As our second Corporate program only concluded in October 2003, we are still in the process of admitting our first class of corporate members. We expect this process to be complete by October 2004.

Membership dues are $36.00 per year, and are assessed quarterly.

PART II, Line 12:

Our primary activity is the operation of our annual conference. Registration fees for this conference are calculated to offset the costs of the conference and to generate a small capital reserve for future projects. The registration fee is currently $45, with various discounts given to encourage early registration.
